Louisville Free Public Library announces six new artists-in-residence for 2019

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (June 5, 2019) – Six new artists have been added to the South Central Regional Library’s COLLIDER Artist-In-Residence roster. Selected artists for July through December include an illustrator/architectural designer, journalist, Indian classical dancer, muralist, mixed media artist, and puppeteer. These artists are successful in their fields, having work featured in permanent collections, published books, launched successful design lines, and performed across the United States.

The Artist-In-Residence program is designed to connect the public with art and the people who create it. Special studio space within the South Central Regional Library allows artists to create on-site and patrons are encouraged to drop in, interact, and learn about different artistic processes, and participate in special, free workshops for the public.

2019 COLLIDER artists:

- July: Maizie Clarke, illustrator & designer
- August: Shyama Iyer, Indian classical dancer
- September: Liz Richter, muralist
- October: Michael L. Jones, journalist & author
- November: Sarah Hall, puppeteer
- December: Ehren Reed, visual artist

Generous funding from Councilwoman Madonna Flood makes the COLLIDER Artist-In-Residence program possible. More on the program and the participating artists can be found here - <http://www.lfpl.org/Collider/>.
